In this instance the individual's/family's living situation is adversely affecting his/their physical and mental health and thus the need for the move.

Workers should note that in each of the five criteria listed above an individual/family is being re-housed (moving from one living situation to another).

Replacement of unusable furniture for health and safety reasons

Very often, an applicant/participant who has not had a change in living accommodations will request an allowance to replace existing furniture that is unusable for a number of reasons (for example, old or broken). In these instances the applicant/participant will claim that the replacement of the furniture is needed in order to safeguard his/her physical and mental health.

A move into unfurnished accommodations must occur in order to issue a furniture grant

In these situations, even if documentation of the claim is submitted, the request for a furniture grant cannot be approved since health and safety reasons in absence of a move, are not sufficient to justify approval of the grant. In these instances, an establishment of a home grant for health and safety reasons can only be approved when an applicant/participant has been moved from one residence into unfurnished accommodations.
